

I urge you to retain the existing rules: rules that serve the public interest, not the private interests of corporations who would limit competition. Diversity has made this country great and should not be further reduced. The media already have too much concentration of ownership. The citizens of a democracy must be vigilant regarding different points of view and so need a variety of news sources. Many news outlets are necessary for our country to continue to thrive.